BRIEF DESCRIPTION

HE IS MULTI TALENTED PERSON WHO HAVE EXTREME COMMAND ON HIS SUBJECT.Like most industries, engineering requires people who can offer a range of abilities to sustain its needs and drive it forward. And because of the pace of change affecting many sectors such as renewable energy or defence, engineers who can demonstrate a track record of achievements will continue to be in high demand.

However, too many people fall into the trap of simply stating what their job role is on th does little more than give a recruiter a synopsis of what your duties entailed and is therefore, a waste of valuable space. is a marketing tool with the sole purpose to sell you as the best candidate for the job...Employers are looking for evidence of what you have achieved during your career so far and what makes you stand out from all the other candidates who are applying for the same position.

To boost your chances of being considered for a more senior post you need to demonstrate your achievements within your current role and keep them relevant to the job you are applying for.

You might show evidence of how your aptitude for problem solving and analysing data that saved a power plant from nuclear meltdown. A slight exaggeration, but you get the point.

Try to include achievements that nobody else can claim. Have you won any awards? Have you delivered a project on time and on budget? Have you developed an innovative product that set your organisation apart from its competitors? Maybe your strong analytical, financial tracking and budgetary control skills have identified cost-cutting measures for your employer?

Always try to include facts and figures so the person reading your CV can relate to the achievement and see how it had an impact on the business as a whole.

He is very polite and friendly with students which make us to more excited to ask question-related to IT. Students are allowed to ask any question in the lecture as well as in the staff room from the sir. Sir always tells us that if you want to become a successful person in your life, you must always listen and follow the teacher and your parents. He loves the teaching work and that is why he has chosen the teaching field. He is always energetic the very next day which gives us strength for studying well. He is the teacher who always focuses more on the weak students and he never does any discriminations between the weak and the brilliant students. He gives more guidance to the weak students and he has also requested the brilliant students of the class to help the weak colleagues.

This person is very intelligent person

One of the greatest qualities a good person need is being faithful. First and foremost, a trustworthy person is someone we can count on no matter what. For example, a good person is a person with whom you can talk to and trust with your secrets, they won't open their mouth just for fun of it because they respect you. Furthermore, a trustworthy person will never lie to each other. Another point of being a faithful person is responsible. For instance, as a responsible member of the family, they will take care of whenever they go far away will always worry for the family members. Namely, with a friend relationship, a good person will never penny wise pound foolish, keep a promise, Apologize when you've made a mistake.

Being a kind person is another necessary quality of a good person. Firstly, a good person is someone who has a warm heart. For instance, he or she will give love to people around by they share their couple with virtuous and kind actions such as doing charity, donate money to poor people or taking care of old people in care homes. Moreover, becoming a volunteer can help community life is improved by aiding others and helping hands like joining green summer program. Secondly, caring for each other is a way to build a good character too. For example, when your friend or your family are in a bad situation, a good person can give useful advice to them to help them solve the problem.

This is knowledgeable person

One of the greatest qualities a good person need is being faithful. First and foremost, a trustworthy person is someone we can count on no matter what. For example, a good person is a person with whom you can talk to and trust with your secrets, they won't open their mouth just for fun of it because they respect you. Furthermore, a trustworthy person will never lie to each other. Another point of being a faithful person is responsible. For instance, as a responsible member of the family, they will take care of whenever they go far away will always worry for the family members. Namely, with a friend relationship, a good person will never penny wise pound foolish, keep a promise, Apologize when you've made a mistake.

Being a kind person is another necessary quality of a good person. Firstly, a good person is someone who has a warm heart. For instance, he or she will give love to people around by they share their couple with virtuous and kind actions such as doing charity, donate money to poor people or taking care of old people in care homes. Moreover, becoming a volunteer can help community life is improved by aiding others and helping hands like joining green summer program. Secondly, caring for each other is a way to build a good character too.

expert communication skills

superior listening skills

deep knowledge and passion for their subject matter

the ability to build caring relationships with students

friendliness and approachability

excellent preparation and organization skills

strong work ethic

community-building skills

high expectations for all

If a teacher's communication skills (verbal, nonverbal, and visual, which involve speaking, writing, imagery, body language, and the organization of ideas into understandable structures) are good, they can convey knowledge with better skill and results.

Since a large part of good communication is knowing when the audience has understood, these teachers notice when they have communicated effectively and when they have not. They will often paraphrase, illustrate, or take another tact entirely when it becomes apparent that their communication has fallen flat or has not reached or connected to the entire class.

A good teacher notices when even one student among many does not understand, and makes an effort to communicate individually when necessary.

Communication also involves explaining exactly what the assignments and expectations are. When students fully understand what is expected of them, it's much easier for them to deliver.

expert communication skills

superior listening skills

deep knowledge and passion for their subject matter

the ability to build caring relationships with students

friendliness and approachability

excellent preparation and organization skills

strong work ethic

high expectations for all

If a teacher's communication skills (verbal, nonverbal, and visual, which involve speaking, writing, imagery, body language, and the organization of ideas into understandable structures) are good, they can convey knowledge with better skill and results.

Since a large part of good communication is knowing when the audience has understood, these teachers notice when they have communicated effectively and when they have not. They will often paraphrase, illustrate, or take another tact entirely when it becomes apparent that their communication has fallen flat or has not reached or connected to the entire class.

A good teacher notices when even one student among many does not understand, and makes an effort to communicate individually when necessary.

Communication also involves explaining exactly what the assignments and expectations are. When students fully understand what is expected of them, it's much easier for them to deliver.

behavior, effective study hours and work habits of all kind. They should also be able to manage the time schedule for the class. The teacher should regularly check the attendance and library accounts with the help of Smart Cards.

Knowledge about the curriculum: the teacher should have a thorough knowledge about the curriculum and should work according to that. The teacher can use his own creative ideas in teaching but should not go out of the curriculum and the other expected standards.

Mastery over the subject: Primarily, a teacher is supposed to teach a particular subject and therefore, must be well-versed with their subject. They must be able to face any question that the students may ask. A good understanding of the subject will help make the teacher's class more interesting.

Passion for teaching: 'Teaching is not a profession, but a passion.' Unless the teacher doesn't have a passion for teaching, he or she cannot be a good teacher. Enlightening the young generation is not an ordinary task. Only a passionate teacher can influence the students.

Communication with the parents: Being in touch with the parents will help the teachers to know their students better. Moreover, the parent will also have an interest in the activities at the school and that is good for the total development. Teachers should update the information about the students in the Parent Portal.

A passion for learning and self development: Teacher must constantly improve their teaching skills by learning and attending refreshment courses. They should update their knowledge by constant reading and using Internet. A good teacher shouldn't have any fear of learning new strategies or using new technology for teaching. Technology can be used by teachers for maintaining discipline and s

3 He says about life that Most people will list all manner of external influences and experiences as being challenges, but since everyone leads their own life and has their own unique experiences, that won't always be helpful. Sure, there are universal aspects to most lives, but there's one critical thing that everyone has to deal with and it has nothing to do with what goes on around you.

The biggest challenge you will ever face is yourself.

Here are some tips:

You need to figure out how to get out of your own way. Look at what you do to yourself to arrest opportunities for success, and change the behavior.

Change your metric for success to something realistic and that makes you happy.

Find the joy in simple pleasures like music, beautiful vistas, the smile of a child, having a good laugh, or spending time with good friends.

Come to terms with that idea that nobody ever gets out of life alive and then live life accordingly.

Don't let anyone tell you what you are worth. Only you decide that.

Don't bother getting angry at traffic. The traffic doesn't care what you think of it.

Life isn't perfect, and there are lots of obstacles arrayed against you for endless reasons dreamed up by selfish people with too much influence and control. The only thing you can do is carve out a little niche that makes you happy and invite others to join you.
