BRIEF DESCRIPTION

1. Positive attitude

At Combined Insurance, we call this PMA: Positive Mental Attitude. PMA is a concept developed by Combined's founder, W. Clement Stone, and it's central to the company's sales system-and corporate culture too. That's because having a smile on your face and a can-do spirit can help an agent push through the fear of failure and focus on the potential to make a difference in someone's life.

While no one wants to hear "no" from a would-be customer, it's just one of the many obstacles faced in the day in the life of a sales agent. A positive attitude is needed to overcome adversity—and it works. And besides, who wants to work with an agent who's surly and negative?

2. Communication

Insurance agents work with both internal and external customers every single day. From helping a sales prospect assess their risks to getting answers from a company underwriter, they're wearing multiple hats—and communicating constantly! Having a naturally personable disposition is great, but it's also essential to have effective listening skills and a "way with words."

Part of the communications competency involves teamwork, too, because of the collaborative nature of insurance sales. Insurance agents are the hub of the sales process and have to manage several different pieces and keep everyone informed along the way. Thoughtful, timely and results-oriented communications help keep things running smoothly.

3. Customer service

Helping people, listening, creatively solving problems...that's customer service! It takes more than building rapport, though. It takes putting the customer's needs first and taking whatever time and energy is needed to ensure customers understand their options as well as feel comfortable with the sales process.

And it takes using their expert knowledge to do what's right for the people who trust them to help meet their goals—even if that means recommending products or sharing information the client doesn't expect, like "based on your present income, you really should consider more coverage than that" or "unfortunately, you don't qualify for plan ABC, but here's an alternative." As such, an agent with great customer service skills is honest, professional and attentive, always making sure their customers are satisfied.

4. Quick learning

Consider the range of products a supplemental insurance agent needs to know (everything) about. Accident plans, sickness plans, disability plans, cancer and critical illness plans...plans that meet different needs for different reasons for different people. And plans that frequently evolve! Agents need to have a deep understanding of how the products work in order to best present the most suitable product to a particular potential policyholder. They also need to be familiar with how the application and underwriting processes work, how the plans are administered and what they can do to help troubleshoot and solve customer concerns.

Good personal hygiene

Good personal hygiene habits include:

washing the body often. If possible, everybody should have a shower or a bath every day. However, there may be times when this is not possible, for example, when people are out camping or there is a shortage of water

If this happens, a swim or a wash all over the body with a wet sponge or cloth will do cleaning the teeth at least once a day. Brushing the teeth after each meal is the best way of making sure that gum disease and tooth decay are avoided. It is very important to clean teeth after breakfast and immediately before going to bed washing the hair with soap or shampoo at least once a week washing hands with soap after going to the toilet washing hands with soap before preparing and/or eating food. During normal daily activities, such as working and playing, disease causing germs may get onto the hands and under the nails. If the germs are not washed off before preparing food or eating, they may get onto the food changing into clean clothes. Dirty clothes should be washed with laundry soap before wearing them again hanging clothes in the sun to dry. The sun's rays will kill some disease-causing germs and parasites turning away from other people and covering the nose and mouth with a tissue or the hand when coughing or sneezing. If this is not done, droplets of liquid containing germs from the nose and mouth will be spread in the air and other people can breathe them in, or the droplets can get onto food

Communication Skills

Solid communication skills are a basic foundation for any career. But for nurses, it's one of the most important aspects of the job. A great nurse has excellent communication skills, especially when it comes to speaking and listening. Based on team and patient feedback, they are able to problem-solve and effectively communicate with patients and families.

Nurses always need to be on top of their game and make sure that their patients are clearly understood by everyone else. A truly stellar nurse is able to advocate for her patients and anticipate their needs.

2. Emotional Stability

Nursing is a stressful job where traumatic situations are common. The ability to accept suffering and death without letting it get personal is crucial. Some days can seem like non-stop gloom and doom.

That's not to say that there aren't heartwarming moments in nursing. Helping a patient recover, reuniting families, or bonding with fellow nurses are special benefits of the job. A great nurse is able to manage the stress of sad situations, but also draws strength from the wonderful outcomes that can and do happen.

3. Empathy

Great nurses have empathy for the pain and suffering of patients. They are able to feel compassion and provide comfort. But be prepared for the occasional bout of compassion fatigue; it happens to the greatest of nurses. Learn how to recognize the symptoms and deal with it efficiently.

BRIEF DESCRIPTION

MR. Devender is working haryana fire control palwal as a fire officer and field manager . Devender inspect all manner of commercial premises to ensure that they comply with current fire safety legislation.A fire safety officer can work anywhere local.If a premises is found to be unsafe a fire officer may prosecute the offending organization or even issue a prohibition notice closing the premises until such time that they are made safe.

Fire Officers also have the power to place anyone committing an offence under caution.

While a fire officer is employed by the Fire Service, any action they undertake is done under the auspices of the Fire and Rescue Authority.Most fire officers choose to transfer into the department because it offers the opportunity of working normal office hours as opposed to the shift system operational firefighters have to work. Others transfer because it is an alternative way to climb the promotional ladder or because it is an opportunity to experience another aspect of the fire service's role.
